The mission of Brooks Academy of Science and Engineering (BASE) in San Antonio, Texas, is built on five basic principles: 1. Personalization, 2. Adult world immersion, 3. Common intellectual mission, 4. Performance based assessment, and 5. A Pre-Engineering focus, to provide students with rigorous, relevant, and academic work place skills. In return, BASE is preparing its graduates for rewarding lives in the technological society of the 21st century. Through strategic planning and implementation, BASE educators plan, implement, and monitor according to their vision to further inspire and educate all learners to rise and exceed challenges of a global society through 21st Century Skills within a technology-rich, project-based teaching and learning environment. Within the overall district improvement plan, BASE offers an After School Program. The BASE District Afterschool component is designed to assist working parents and their children by providing a safe learning environment with extended learning opportunities beyond the regular school day hours and a healthy snack per program guidelines. The purpose of the proposed BASE 21st Century Community Learning Centers (CCLC) Application for the 2016-17 school year (SY) will be to further define and expand current activities, through collaboration with Educational Results Foundation, to focus upon enrichment and focused. target specific, small group/individual student data-driven identified TEKS to primarily meet state and local student needs for all participants. Through the prosed 21st CCLC BASE Afterschool, collaborative efforts between BASE and Educational Results Foundation (ERF) will further infuse, expand, and enrich current daily curriculum efforts/practices from the campus teaching and learning environment. Through a product and best practice review, the 21st CCLC will provide a broad array of identified best practices and Scientific-based Research (SBR), using Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, and Math (STEAM) as primary activities/resources recreation, technology, and character education initiatives. Furthermore, the new community learning centers at Brooks Estrella Academy Elementary and Brooks International Studies Academy (BISA) Elementary will grow and increase counseling/social interaction, youth enhancement sessions, literacy and related educational needs for families and community members, so that the campus learning possibilities are afforded all learners, both children and adults. The design will embrace positive youth social/emotional development, skills and knowledge to promote beliefs and skills for resilience in day-to-day practices and enduring acquired principles. Through active participation and engagement of offered learning experiences, participants expand their resources, contacts, and tools to address every data identified, participant level of desired achievement. The nurtured culture of the new learning environment will promote healthy individuals who will grow into productive citizens, find new ways to make their life and their future, moving toward becoming a quality driven, productive and contributive, societal participant.

Specifically, BASE 21st CCLC will support positive changes within the lives of our learners by 1.) providing professional development and ongoing technical assistance to CCLC staff, 2.) discovering new partnerships among the community, 3.) create supporting, nurturing, positive relationships with and among children, other youth, and adults. Skills for gathering, analyzing, interpreting, and evaluating evidence will be ongoing. This will result in all participants an expanding knowledge base through investigation, problem-solving, invention, and experimentation, which are highly valued in Career and College Readiness standards for Post-Secondary preparation. Realizing capacity of effective and efficient leading of the BASE 21st CCLC staff, we will monitor/adjust/manage the program design as presented in the application. Our end product will reflect a community of caring, highly competent participants who nurture, motivate, and engage students in a STEAM 21st CCLC culture and learning environment of experiential moments within life. Both Estrella and BISA were identified as campuses "Improvement Required" for the 16-17 SY. One Critical Success Factor (CSF) provided the the USDE is to Increase Learning Time. The BASE 21st CCLC's design provides expended academic enrichment opportunities within the low-performing identified campuses, as the also address focused, targeted TEKS interventions to help student meet local and state academic standards in core content areas. In addition, other youth activities associated with drug and violence presentation, technology, fine arts, counseling/social intervention, and character education infused are identified in new research based activities for actively engaging students and going deeper into subject matter through coherence, challenge, and engagement (Bransford, Brown, & Cocking, 2000). Standards and related reports by the National Council on Teachers of Mathematics (1989, 1991, 1998) have repeatedly emphasized "science and mathematics are active disciplines, oriented to sense-making and problem-solving, not merely isolated facts, but truly on the other end of the spectrum, hands-on-activities for activities' sake." Recommendations for reading and language arts similarly emphasize "embedded specific skills in meaningful content" (International Reading Association, 1996; National Research Council, 1997). Unlike traditional After-School Programs focused upon homework support, with minimal homework help due to minimal staff qualifications. In addition, Afterschool programs focused upon safe havens to prolong the school day until parents were able to pick-up their child(ren) (Fashola, 2002; Hollister, 2003). The BASE 21st Century CCLC will have a robust subject-area tutorial service, non-tutorial academic enrichment such as project-based learning connected to ongoing campus Year At a Glance (YAG) scope and sequence, and non-academic enrichment activities (Simpkins, 2003). Non-tutorial and non-academic can enhance student learning through addressing cord developmental needs of children for "affiliation, identity, and mastery" (Vandell, Reisner, Brown, Pierce, Dadisman, & Pechman, 2004). USDE and USDJ (2000) found students need to practice storytelling, fames. listening skills, and other activities to develop literacy skills through intelligent discussions with adults. Quality programs allow low-income student and others, to follow and explore new interest or curiosities through the use of other intelligencies such as musical intelligence, outdoor intelligences, tactile and kinesthetic intelligence to name a few as determined by Howard Gardner. According to Learning First Alliance (2001), "Student are most motivated to learn, feel the greatest sense of accomplishment, and achieve at the highest levels when they are able to succeed at task that spark their interests and stretch their capacities (CSF, Increase Student Achievement). To be meaningful, learning must effectively connect to students' questions, concerns, and personal experiences" (p.4). Attracting and sustaining high levels of student and staff attendance is a major component of a successful Afterschool 21st CCLC. High At-Risk students are often disengaged from school due to family problems, helping at home, family lives with illnesses, drug related problems, and general environmental concerns (Lauver, 2004; Weisman, Soule, & Womer, 2001). Strategies for attracting and keeping high levels of participation in the 21st CCLC will entail building into the program flexibility (CFS Increase Operational Flexibility) to match schedules to accommodate student identified need(s); mixing fun and interesting activities with enjoyment and relaxation time away from day to day normal routines; provide engaging projects which are infused with identified TEKS focus and target specific tasks; and proposing community engagement and leadership occasions (CSF Extracurricular Involvement) affording meaningful conversations and dialogue with adult peers, committee representatives on the 21st CCLC Steering Group, and various outreach activities provided for students and adults. BASE 21st CCLC will use quality afterschool learning tools and technical assistance to identify, record and measure rigorous evidence, both qualitative and quantitative, as demonstrated through deep statistical analysis of gathered findings. BASE 21st CCLC wil consult with state/regional education 21st CCLC liaisons for viable and reliable designs addressing common variables and processes associated with positive afterschool program outcomes. Initially, within the proposal, BASE 21st CCLC programming has set SMART goals, identified evaluation needs, reviewed quality curricular materials for age appropriate, high engaging products, and locating campuses embracing the opportunity to house and implement an "out of the box" approach to afterschool programs, meeting student and adult needs, addressing all three domains of learning (cognitive, social/emotion/psychomotor) as implemented for data driven decisions (CSF Decisions based upon Data-driven results) to develop an interactive, engagement of all seven (7) USDE identified Critical Success Factors as they not only impact low performance within the state accountability system at the participating campuses, but also effect the sustainable development of inter-connected quality systems to impact challenges to stretch student capacity, or when a student stumbles, we monitor student progress in real-time through multi-dimensional assessments for "just in time" intervention and future success. Together, through principles and practices presented in the summary, BASE 21st CCLC strives to create teaching and learning environments that nurture and support the healthy development of the whole child.

Schedule #13—Needs Assessment

County-district number or vendor ID: 015-830

Amendment # (for amendments only):

Part 1: Process Description. A needs assessment is a systematic process for identifying and prioritizing needs and resources. Needs are defined as the area, or gap, between current performance and the desired result. Describe the process for objectively assessing the needs and resources for this program, including a description of the process for prioritizing multiple needs and aligning proposed activities to meet the needs, including the needs of working families. Response is limited to space provided, front side only. Use Arial font, no smaller than 10 point.

BASE 21st CLCC will utilize the Texas Assessment Intervention Sysytem (TAIS) of data needs processes, protocols, and activities. Success requires purposeful actions and thoughtful planning based on analyzing data, determining needs, developing targeted plans for improvement, and monitoring the implementation and impact of those plans to ensure a focused approach driven by data. Program, Practice & Intervention Review is one successful strategy currently used by the Improvement Required (IR) campuses: 1. List the various programs and practices (intervention) in place at your school/district to support targeted areas of need in the left hand column. 2.Next to each indicate the target audience. 3. Rate the effectiveness of the intervention based on a review of System Safeguards as Highly effective, Moderately effective, Not yet effective, and Time to change. 4. List the evidence you used to make the rating. 5.Complete the chart for each program, practice or intervention targeting specific academic or behavioral needs. 6.Review your findings to determine which programs, practices or interventions are most effective, which ones need review and any that should be considered for discontinuation, and 6. Next review your data and this chart to determine if there are areas of unmet needs.

In addition to contributions, support and mentoring by San Antonio big businesses, companies, supportive organizations for At Risk students will be actively pursued. BASE has numerous affilations with local community based interest within the STEM program. We are also hoping to expand the STEM into STEAM in future years within the 21st CCLC program. The "A" stands for arts. San Antonio has a very active Arts program within the community. The location of the campuses near downtown and also on the SE, former Brooks Air Force Base, now known as Brooks City Base, there are those opportunities. Being a 21st CCLC would	- enhance the opportunity and interest in the BASE programs. BASE recently embraced the expansion into two elementary campuses within the are, but not on site. Defined specific partnerships with each campus has not taken place, Instead, the partnerships and community-based organization activities are for all campuses.

Community needs are the same as those in other large cities. More and more women also work outside the home. Many of the BISA parents are military families. Juggling the professional and personal lives within a family are challenging. The After School Program was focused upon tutoring and providing a safe haven for children after school until there was an adult able to be engaged with the child late afternoon, early evening. The 21 st CCLC will still provide the above, but the focus is upon student achievement through active engagement during the teaching and learning time. The centers are is close proximity to the parents work for the most part. Now, with the 21 st CCLC, high quality, total hand ons learning opportunities will provide and environment great interst and learning opportunities.
